

Shri Kunjbehari Agrawal Educational Trust

Shri Kunjbehari Agrawal Educational Trust (KBAET) was established in 2006 with two primary objectives: 1) to improve the quality of education; and 2) to increase accessibility of free education to a targeted population of under-privileged students in the community.

The initial focus of KBAET was to provide basic facilities to major schools in the town of Bindki, in Uttar Pradesh's Fatehpur district. Scholarships were awarded to top students passing standardized exams with distinction. In light of these contributions, it was clear that the existing activities were not sufficient to improve the quality or accessibility of education. KBAET initiated a coaching program to supplement the curriculum at government-aided schools in order to elevate education levels and enable them to compete for higher studies. This coaching is provided free for students in 8th grade, for a nominal fee for students in 9-12th grade and free for students in the targeted community population.

Thus far, the coaching has seen excellent results among the 700 students who have completed the program. Expansion beyond the 200 current participants is underway via owned school buses that provide free and safe transportation from more remote areas to the facility, enabling more females to participate in safe and secure environment. KBAET is planning to open a school later this year to further their mission to improve the quality and accessibility of education specifically for their target population.
